FAQ

1. Do I need to apply for this licence?

You do not need to apply for an Electricity Licence for Generation Licensee to generate electricity if you fall into the following categories:

- (a) The generating units are used solely to provide backup power in the event of interruption of electricity supply from the transmission system, and are not connected to and not operated in parallel with the transmission system (standby generators); or
- (b) The nameplate capacity of the generating unit is less than 10 MW. However, please note that for generating units with a nameplate capacity of 1 MW or more but less than 10 MW which are connected to the transmission system, you will need to register as a market participant with the Market Company in accordance with the Market Rules and apply for an Electricity Wholesaler Licence.

2. Does the licence guarantee a registration to the Market Company?

The issuance of a licence does not guarantee registration by the Market Company for participation in the Wholesale Electricity Market in Singapore.

3. Are there any regulations for the licensee to comply to?

The Licensee shall be subject to and shall comply with:

- a. the Transmission Code;
- b. the Metering Code; and
- c. any other relevant codes of practice and standards of performance issued or approved under Section 16 of the Electricity Act

4. Are there any other prerequisites for this application?

The Applicant is required to first consult the Transmission Licensee for an electricity connection scheme and the Transmission Licensee will advise the Applicant on the proposed connection scheme accordingly. The Applicant is required to submit evidence of his acceptance of the Transmission Licensee's proposed connection scheme as part of his application.

If the Applicant intends to use gas as a fuel for the generating units, the Applicant is also required to consult the Gas Transporter Licensee for a gas connection scheme and the Gas Transporter Licensee will advise the Applicant on the proposed gas connection scheme accordingly. The Applicant is required to submit evidence of the acceptance of the Gas Transporter Licensee's proposed gas connection scheme as part of this application.
